

Ocean Wreck Divers Hosts Annual Scuba Divers Flea Market

Toms River, NJ, February 15th, 2009 – Ocean Wreck Divers is hosting their 22nd Annual Indoor Scuba Divers Super Flea Market on Sunday, February 15, 2009 from 9:00am until 2:00pm, at Toms River Intermediate School North.

The Divers Flea Market will feature the best in New & Used Dive Gear, as well as some fishing gear and other marine & dive related items. There will also be food, raffles & door prizes. Local and area vendors and merchants from the entire East Coast will be attending and offering their diving merchandise at spectacular prices! 105.7 The Hawk Radio will be there doing live on-air updates as well as helping to announce raffle winners.

“The Super Flea Market provides our local diving community an opportunity to view and purchase the latest and greatest diving gear and equipment available, as well as the added bonus of finding some fantastic bargains on some “pre-owned” items.” said Jim Flanagan, President of Ocean Wreck Divers. “Besides bargain hunting, the flea market is always a scuba social event; the first opportunity of each new year where divers gather with shop owners and charter boat operators to discuss plans for the coming season. It is always a great turnout of ‘Jersey’ divers”.

Ocean Wreck Divers was organized in 1978 by a small group of people who wanted to dive locally together. The purpose of the club has expanded over the years to include more than diving with experienced and safety-conscious divers. Ocean Wreck Divers has taken up some very important causes in their 30 years of existence including supporting the Artificial Reef Program, New Jersey Historical Divers Association, American Littoral Society, Marine Mammal Stranding Center and Handicapped Scuba Association of NJ to name a few. Ocean Wreck Divers meets each month at the Ocean County College. Local divers are welcome. More information can be obtained at the web site, <http://www.oceanwreckdivers.com>
